If you enjoy playing Monster Hunter games, it is no doubt that you have heard about the newest iteration of the series which has been announced in Japan for the Wii U console and it will be named "Monster Hunter 3". It will be released in February 2020. Article content continued At 23 C-3 Dome, which will be the home of the Royals' farm team, the whole area is crying out for rezoning. This narrow wedge of land, sloping in the north from the Airport to West Carleton Street, is believed to be the key to lifting the eastern portion of the city to the heights of wealth and distinction once inhabited by the great northern industrial cities and currently destined to remain a rundown, post-industrial suburb. At the time of the 1918 survey there were about 80 similar structures in the area and what we now call the "G.H." District was almost exclusively residential and agricultural. And what a difference 20 years makes: it is now the home of the city's first class (kindergarten to Grade 12), both public and private (Westboro High, St. Mary's College), all of its fine schools (McNaughton, St. Joseph, St. Andrew's and St. Patrick's), a goody portion of the Anglican church, St. Mark's (which it is now fashionable to call, on the spurious grounds of parish antiquity, the most prominent), lots of fine residences (McBean, Kempen, Coughlan), and a substantial number of business establishments (Kennedy House, Westmore Hotel, the Jeromes, the Malt Store, the Dog House, McCaslin & Wyndham, the Toronto Railway Company, the Great Northern Railway, the Great Western Railway, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and the Liberal-Conservative Association). While it is true that at the time of the survey the activity in the district was
